

Reception Class Newsletter

This week we started to think about the seaside, holidays and under the sea. We have begun to find out about different sea creatures, included sea horses. We read the beautifully illustrated Eric Carle's 'Mr Seahorse and we will continue with this story next week too. We have spent some of the week talking about our assembly for next week. All the children have been asked if they would like to share a memory during the assembly. If your child initially said they didn't want to speak, we will ask them again next week in case they have changed their mind. Equally if your child no longer wishes to speak we will accommodate that too! Some children aren't confident enough yet. It can be quite daunting have all those faces staring at you. Even if they aren't speaking individually they will be involved in other ways! We look forward to welcoming you to school next week to see it.

Transition

This week we began hosting our first transition visits for our new starters. I was really proud of how the children looked after them and welcomed them into school. We will shortly beginning to think about our transition to year 1. We will let you know more about this next week.

Lost Property

We have 2 unnamed school fleeces. Please let us know if they might be yours.

Mystery Reader

Thank you to Florence's Dad, Mr Jones, who came to be our mystery reader this week.

PE Kits

Everyone did a super job of getting themselves changed for PE. We did come across a few items of unnamed clothing. Please can you check your child's uniform is named.

Super stars

Congratulations to our stars for this week:

Franio and Ayrella
